1. ADDITIONAL DEFINITIONS.

"Cold Disaster Recovery Equipment" means a server and/or processor or device on which the Licensed Software may be installed and configured under a Cold Disaster Recovery License, and which is not production use servicing transactions or requiring workloads during periods of Your normal internal business operations.

"Core" means a functional unit on a processor that reads, interprets, and executes computer instructions, including instructions from the Licensed Software. A "Core" refers to the processor or execution core contained in the same integrated circuit within a computer's central processing unit, whether such Cores are virtual or physical. A multi-core processor is a single computing component with two or more independent "Cores". Each "Core" where a Veritas product is deployed and/or running is required to be licensed.

"Disaster" means an unforeseen occurrence causing the operation of the applicable systems on which the Licensed Software is used for Production Use, or the Licensed Software installed on such systems, to be substantially impaired or prevented, which occurrence may include but is not limited to fires, earthquakes, floods and computer viruses.

"Failover Readiness Testing" means testing of the procedures for transferring Your production operation from one server to another.

"File System" is a collection of files storing information on a computer storage device, organized with a hierarchical directory structure. A File System may also be referred to as a Veritas File System.

"Instance" An "instance" of the Licensed Software is created by executing the Licensed Software's setup or install procedure and/or duplicating an existing instance.

"Production Use" means any functional operation of the Licensed Software in support of Your normal business operations (such as normal productive use and pre-production testing other than Failover Readiness Testing).

"Server" means a standalone system or an individual computer acting as a service or resource provider to client computers by sharing the resources within the network infrastructure. A Server can run server software for other computers or devices.

"Standard License Key" means the applicable Veritas license key that may consist of either alphabetic or numeric characters or a combination of both alphabetic and numeric characters assigned to the Licensed Software.

"Subscription" means a license granted to You to use the Licensed Software for a specific period of time. You may only use the Licensed Software for the duration of time purchased subject to the terms and conditions of the License Agreement.

“Testing Day” means a period of twenty-four (24) consecutive hours, or any lesser portion of such twenty-four (24) hour period.

“Tier” means a Veritas defined classification of Server. The Server tier defines the type of hardware on which the Licensed Software may be deployed.

“Virtual Machine”, also referred to as a VM, is defined as a software implementation of a computer that does not physically exist but is created within a single instance of an operating system on a physical computer to enable applications to execute within the environment of that instance of the operating system.

“Volume” is defined as a single or an aggregate number of physical or virtual block devices of storage (including disks and logical units “LUNs”). This is specific to volumes with application-related user data, and excludes any volumes necessary to boot up the Server’s operating system (i.e., root/boot/swap volumes).

Except as set forth above, Cold Disaster Recovery Equipment on which the Licensed Software is installed shall be powered down or shall be maintained in an idle state. The Licensed Software installed on Your Cold Disaster Recovery Equipment and used pursuant to the rights set forth in this subparagraph must be the same version of the Licensed Software You use for Your regular Production Use. In addition, the rights set forth in this subparagraph will automatically terminate in the event that You do not have a valid maintenance/support contract in effect for the Licensed Software.
